
NOAH'S ARK

A STORY OF FAITH AND GOD'S PROMISE

BRIGHT WEEK BOOKS

BRIGHT WEEK BOOKS

NOAH'S ARK

A Story of Faith and God's Promise

A retelling of Genesis 6-9

Retold by Bright Week Books

Noah's Ark

© 2026 Bright Week Books.

Book design, selection, and editorial arrangement. First non-personalized English edition. Based on Genesis 6-9.

This is an original picture-book retelling, not a quotation from a particular Bible translation.

Bright Week Books · brightweekbooks.com

For Little Listeners

For little listeners and the grown-ups who love them.

May these pages open a quiet moment for faith, kindness, and wonder.

BRIGHT WEEK BOOKS

CHAPTER 1

The Call

Long ago, there lived a man named Noah who walked with God. One day, God told him that a great flood was coming. Noah was to build an ark: a great wooden boat to shelter his family and the animals. Noah listened, trusted God, and began.

CHAPTER 2

Building the Ark

Noah measured and sawed and hammered, day after day. One plank at a time, the ark grew broad and strong. It was a very big task, but Noah kept working. There would be room for his family and the creatures God had told him to bring.

CHAPTER 3

Two by Two

Then the animals came, two by two, great and small. Tall giraffes and heavy elephants. Lions and rabbits, fluttering birds and tiny ants. Up the wooden ramp they went. The ark was ready to welcome them all.

CHAPTER 4

The Rain Begins

The first raindrops fell. Noah waited at the doorway with his lantern, watching the little lamb below. Soon Noah, his family, and the animals were inside. God shut them safely in. Outside, the rain grew louder. Inside, they had shelter.

CHAPTER 5

Forty Days of Rain

Rain fell for forty days and forty nights. The waters rose, and the great ark floated upon them. Waves rolled past its wooden sides. Noah and his family stayed together inside, with the animals around them. Through the long storm, God had not forgotten them.

CHAPTER 6

Inside the Ark

Inside the ark, lanterns glowed against the dark. There was hay for the horses and seed for the birds. The rabbits were quiet, and the grey wolves rested. Morning and evening, Noah cared for the creatures. While they waited, there was work to do and kindness to share.

CHAPTER 7

The Dove Returns

At last the rain stopped, and the waters slowly went down. Noah waited patiently. He sent out a dove, then waited and sent her out again. One evening, she returned with a fresh olive leaf in her beak. Noah smiled. Green leaves were growing again.

CHAPTER 8

Dry Land

The ark had come to rest on the mountains of Ararat. Now, after the long wait, the ground was dry. God told Noah it was time to leave. Out came the animals: hooves and paws and wings, stepping into the sunshine. A new beginning lay before them.

CHAPTER 9

Giving Thanks

On the dry earth, Noah built an altar of stones. He knelt before God with a thankful heart. His family and the animals had come safely through the flood. With the ark resting on the hill behind him, Noah gave thanks for God's care and this new beginning.

CHAPTER 10

The Rainbow Promise

Then God set a rainbow in the clouds, a sign of His promise to Noah, to the people who would come after him, and to every living creature. Never again would a flood destroy all life on earth. Noah looked up in wonder. God remembers His creation and keeps His promises.

The End

God remembers His creation and keeps His promises.

BRIGHT WEEK BOOKS

For parents and caregivers: learn about our personalized Noah's Ark book at brightweekbooks.com

BRIGHT WEEK BOOKS

Christian storybooks, made with reverence.

A wooden ark. A world of animals. A promise in the sky.

Follow Noah from the first swing of his hammer to the wonder of the rainbow. This gentle retelling of Genesis 6-9 invites little listeners to discover faith, patience, kindness, and gratitude.

A beautifully illustrated story to read aloud and share together.

brightweekbooks.com

